PREFATORY REMARKS.

In these days of astonishing progress in industrial methods and scientific discoveries the tendency is becoming more general to formulate the principles and describe the importance of such progress in scientific and professional journals rather than in the form of books. It thus follows that the student or the investigator must turn rather to periodical literature than to separate volumes for the facts and theories that are of primary importance to him.

In connection with the preparation of a series of subject catalogues or finding lists for the use of the officers of the Army it seems, therefore, advisable that one comprising the periodicals of this Library should be among the earliest to appear. The annuals, periodicals, and series of continuing publications, such as the Congressional Documents in the Library of the War Department, number about 8,000 volumes, constituting fully one-fourth of the entire Library collection.

The War Department Library is particularly rich in periodical literature of a historical character wherein appears the current history of the development of military science, not only in America, but also in Europe. The file of Congressional Documents is, with one or two exceptions, the most complete in the world, and is unbroken from the Thirteenth Congress to the present day. It should be added that the completeness of this file is, in a large measure, due to the continuous and zealous efforts of the Librarian, Mr. David Fitz Gerald, during the past sixteen years. Whatever is missing in the Reports and Documents of the very early Congresses is to be found in the American State Papers, wherein appears almost every Congressional or Executive Document of importance from the meeting of the First Congress in 1789 to 1832. The papers pertaining to military affairs are especially complete, extending from 1789 to 1838. In view of the fact that little is known of the volumes of Congressional Documents from 1789 to 1817, the documents of the first fourteen Congresses have been treated somewhat extensively for a finding list of this character.

The serial publications of the War Department, especially the professional papers, have been catalogued quite fully in view of their importance to officers of the Army and other students of military science. The publications of other Executive Departments of the Government are catalogued less completely, but, nevertheless, to such an extent as to prove of some benefit to those whose researches cover other grounds than military or naval, and are intended to give general indications only of the valuable professional literature published by other Executive Departments whose librarians, it is believed, will at an early day supplement this general catalogue by a full bibliographical list of their publications.

While the alphabetical order has been followed, as a general rule, in this Catalogue, yet it is modified by a geographical arrangement, so that all Government and State publications, such as Army Registers, Archives, etc., and those of State historical associations appear first under the country (if outside the United States) or State by whom such publications are issued or in which the historical associations are situated. For instance, reports of Adjutants-General, etc., of Massachusetts are found under that State, as well as the Proceedings of the Essex Institute, of Salem, Massachusetts. Proceedings of the Grand Army of the Republic, however, appear under their respective Departments, whose boundaries are not always coincident with that of the States.

With a view to facilitate research on the part of officers of the Army, it is thought best to indicate the sources from whence information can be drawn in the preparation of military essays, etc., bearing on American wars from the Colonial and Revolutionary struggles to the late Civil War.

Titles, by numbers, of works containing valuable information relating to the following wars:

Colonial wars: 21, 42, 123, 175, 185, 186, 220, 222, 223, 232, 244, 255, 260, 261, 303, 317.

Hickox in his "United States Government Publications," vols. 1, 1885, to 10, 1894, gives a list of all current documents printed by order of Congress, besides official publications of the Executive Departments.

For convenience a complete list of the volumes of Congressional Documents for each session is given from the 1st to the 53d Congress. The set in the War Department Library is complete, except the Reports and Documents for the first fourteen Congresses, where the total number of separate documents in this Library is entered for each session, there being no standard volumes for this period.

The earliest known register of the regular Army of the United States is in a Cong. Doc., 7C: 2S, Senate, being the President's message of February 16, 1802, etc. It transmits a roll of persons having office or employment under the United States, and enumerates the military establishment, which includes "the officers of the Army, the agents of the Quartermaster's Department, the superintendents and other officers of the armories, the superintendent and storekeepers of the military stores, the superintendents and other agents of the Indian Department, and the agents for fortification." The register is printed under the title "Military Establishment" and has a separate pagination.

The Library copy of the August, 1813, Register was originally an appendix to Melish's Military and Topographical Atlas of the United States. The Library Register of December 27, 1813, is a reprint from an unknown source. The Register of May 17, 1815, is an original proof of twelve pages which has been inserted and given a new pagination (33 to 44) in "Organization of the Military Establishment of the United States, in conformity to the provisions of an Act of Congress, passed the 3d day of March, 1815." Published by authority of the War Department, Wash., Gales and Seaton, 1815. That of 1822 is had by the Library only in reprint, "American State Papers." Of the Register for January, 1863, only 100 copies were printed, and there were none for general distribution, the regular Register for the year being that published in April.

The following Registers are printed in the "American State Papers," section "Military Affairs, vols. 1-7: 1813, 1816, 1818, 1821, 1823-38. Army Registers have also been reprinted as House Ex. Docs., as follows: 14C: 1S, No. 33, Jan. 1, 1816; 30C: 2S, vol. 3, No. 56, Register of February, 1848; 31C: 1S, vol. 8, No. 54, July, 1849; 32C: 2S, vol. 6, No. 48, 50, and 58, July, 1850; Jan., 1851, and Dec., 1852, respectively; 33C: 1S, vol. 8, No. 59, July, 1853; 33C: 2S, vol. 5, No. 58, July, 1854; 34C: 1S, vol. 7, No. 22,
